Employee Funds Are Set Up by Star and KXAR

Employee Welfare Funds were set up for their respective staffs this week by Star Publishing company, owner of Hope Star, and by Hope Broadcasting company, which owns Radio Station KXAR.

The Star has had hospitalization and surgery-fee coverage on its employees with Aetna Life Insurance company for many years, and Hope Broadcasting company is taking on the same coverage for its staff this month.

But the insurance program doesn't cover employees' wives and wholly dependent children under the age of 21—and this coverage will be given by the company-supervised Welfare Funds just now put into effect.

The two Welfare Funds are entirely separate, just as the companies are, with different stockholders and managements—but both Funds operate on the following pattern:

The company makes an initial payment amounting to 1 per cent of the 1953 payroll, and adds to this a sustaining payment of 1 per cent of the 1954 payroll. It is expected that in the future each company will contribute 1 per cent of current payroll to its Welfare Fund quarterly, but there is no obligation on the company to do so—and each Fund will be expected to build up its own reserves as time goes on.

Welfare money is deposited in a separate bank account managed by a committee of three employees who have been with the company for a year or more. In the event of surgery upon any employee's wife or wholly dependent child under the age of 21 the Welfare Fund is obligated to pay the standard charge listed by Aetna Life.

The details of the Welfare Funds were worked out by A. H. Washburn, secretary-treasurer of Star Publishing company and president of Hope Broadcasting company, and the authorization necessary to put the Funds into effect was given by the boards of directors of each company October 7, 1953. The money was transferred under date of December 31, and each committee took charge of its respective Fund January 4.

The plans for this undertaking were borrowed from a program which has operated for many years among employees of the Texarkana Gazette, published by C. E. Palmer, who is the 50-50 partner of A. H. Washburn in The Star and president of Star Publishing company. Mr. Palmer has a minority interest in Hope Broadcasting company, which company is operated by L. B. Tooley, general manager and director.

Of today's announcement, Mr. Palmer said:

"We have carried for several years hospitalization and surgical fee insurance for all our employees; all the premiums therefor being paid by the company.

"We have found this very helpful to members of our organization in cases of hospitalization and also where surgery was needed, and two years ago we established in some of our towns what we call a Welfare Fund, administered entirely by a committee elected by employees. To this fund the company contributes a percentage of its total payroll, and this fund takes care of hospitalization and surgical fee requirements of wives and dependent members of employees' families.

"We have found this so desirable and helpful that the Hope Star has now established a similar Welfare Fund.

The employees committee which will manage the Hope Star Welfare Fund are: Paul H. Jones, Jess M. Davis, and George W. Hosmer.

The committee for the KXAR Welfare Fund are: Wes Nimmich, Norman Bradford, and Haskell Jones.

Officers of Hope Broadcasting company, besides Mr. Washburn, are: Roy Anderson, vice-president; B. W. Edwards, secretary-treasurer; L. B. Tooley, general manager and director; and other directors and stockholders, B. R. Hamm, Mrs. C. E. Palmer, and Mrs. B. W. Edwards.

Salvation Army Is Bitter at L. R.

LITTLE ROCK, K.M. — Bitter and bewildered Salvation Army officials have denied stoutly that they threw away good food and toys at Christmas.

Capt. Warren H. Fulton, head of the Army's City Command Office, said "We have not thrown away and do not throw away anything that can be used."

Fulton said the local Salvation Army had received critical letters from "coast to coast" since nationwide distribution of a picture showing two small children filling a crate at the city dump with canned food and toys the day after Christmas.

The articles had been dumped in the trash heap by a Salvation Army truck.

Resignation Throws Italy Into Crisis

By ALLAN JACKS

ROME (AP) — Pro-Western Italian political leaders, plunged into their second government crisis in six months, sought a premier today who could unite them in a twin battle against rising economic stress and Communist pressure.

Giuseppe Peella resigned as premier last night in an abrupt climax to an internal squabble in his governing Christian Democrat party over a vital issue in Italy — land reform. He had been premier for almost five months following the resignation of Alcide de Gasperi in July.

His stepdown aroused new concern in the United States that the Communists would make gains in Italy due to the unstable political and economic situation. U. S. Ambassador Clare B. Booth Luce, now on a home visit, already has given Secretary of State Dulles and other high American officials his personal report on this nation's problems.

President Luigi Einaudi was expected to start talks with party heads tomorrow as the first step in finding a new premier. Observers were reluctant to speculate on his ultimate choice, but they believed he would not make any decision before Monday.

Ellender Wants McCarthy Before Senate

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Ellender (D-La.) said today he will invite Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) to talk to the Senate whether he uses "rehashed, plagiarized" information in his claimed exposure of Communists in government.

McCarthy, without specifically mentioning Ellender's announcement, plan to urge that the Senate cut McCarthy's investigating funds "down to size," said that if Democrats with such a move "it will be the most Pyrrhic victory they ever won... a victory in which you destroy yourself."

Informing Ellender said, "I'm going to oppose not only him, but all." Senate committee chairmen who ask the Senate for increased funds, Ellender long has argued that no committee should get more than the $85,000 automatically given it at the start of each Congress session.

McCarthy's investigations submitted last year had a budget of $200,000 and he has said he will ask for an unspecified increase in 1954.

Wife Complains Hubby Won't Talk Enough at Home, Boss Says He Talks Too Much

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The average wife complains her husband doesn't talk enough at home. The average employer complains that same husband spends too much time exercising his vocal cords at the office.

Both the wife and the boss are absolutely right. Naturally. But what can be done about it? How can the boss get this husband to gab less while he's on the job, and the wife make him give with a little more conversation after he comes home and takes off his shoes?

"The problem as I see it is quite simple. The hired hands come to work full of overnight woes they are eager to pour into any ear. All day long they lope from desk to desk telling their troubles.

But when they return at evening to their little castles and the good wife begs "Tell me what's new at the office?" Well, what can they reply? They don't know anything new, because they have

$31,700 Still Missing; 3 Negroes Held

By ED CREAUGH

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secret Service agents hunted today for $31,700 still missing the bold New Year's Eve theft of $100,000 from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

They speculated the search might lead to a fourth arrest in a case that was "cracked" yesterday with the nabbing of a bureau employee, his jauntily dressed wife and a soft-spoken little flagpole painter on a tip furnished — after all-night soul searching — by the father of the woman.

The three are Negroes. They were arrested one after the other in a day that began with a 5 a. m. phone call to Virginia state police by Irving Grant, father of Mrs. Mammie Landis, and ended with recovery of $128,300 in three separate caches, of the loot apparently smuggled from the money printing plant in the tail of a suit back to the accused.

James Landis, 29, a $142-an-hour checker in the heavily guarded plant which makes the government's currency. The 6-foot-1 Landis was held in $50,000 bail on a currency theft.

William Giles, 27, the lagoon painter who freely admitted driving with the Landises to the Fauquier County, Va., tenant cabin of Irving Grant in an effort to hide $95,000 of the "hot" currency.

Officials said Landis admitted stealing 8,000 crackling new $20 bills from their paper coverings and stuing plain paper in their place. The dummy packages weren't discovered until the long New Year's weekend was over.

Death Valley Scotty Dies at Age of 81

By STOVEPIP WELLS, Calif. (AP)

Death Valley Scotty died last night in his beloved castle, a three-million-dollar showplace in the desert wilderness.

Scotty, 81, was California's most famous prospector since the gold rush, and the adventuresome and mysterious tales of his gold strikes are legion.

Yet the only treasure he is known to have come by was the wealth of his late friend and benefactor, Albert Mussey Johnson, Chicago insurance executive. Johnson kept him in style.

Dr. E. Vasse Wallace, of Las Vegas, Nev., said Scotty died of a gastro-intestinal hemorrhage. Wallace said he had been treating Scotty — whose true name was Walter Scott — for the past five years.

Wallace said he was summoned yesterday afternoon and found Scotty in grave condition at the castle, 173 miles northwest of Las Vegas.

He said the colorful old desert rate was conscious until the end, and died quietly. At his bedside was Mary Lidd-coat, president of the Gospel Foundation of California, who had been Scotty's constant companion during the last two years.

Johnson, actual owner of the castle, conveyed the property to the gospel foundation upon his death about six years ago. He provided, however, that Scotty was to live there the remainder of his life. If he desired, and a suite was maintained for him, said Walter Webb, business representative of the foundation.

Scotty leaves a widow, Josephine Scott, 77, who has been living in Long Beach, Calif., for the last 10 years; a son, Navy Lt. Walter P. Scott, 39, who is stationed at the naval air station at Oak Harbor, Wash.; and two grandchildren, Walter P. Scott Jr., 13, and Kathleen 13.

Mrs. Scott told a reporter that she and Scotty had lived apart during most of their marriage. A free-handed spender, and a high-flying entertainer, Scotty became one of the legendary figures of California's romantic history.

Lewis Offers ILA Million If Union Strikes

NEW YORK (AP) — President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers was reported today to have promised to strike fund of one million dollars to the International Longshoremen's Association if it calls a dock walkout in a move to win bargaining recognition.

The ILA, locked in a struggle with the new ILA-AFL for control of waterfront labor, has hinted at a strike if the National Labor Relations Board sets aside a representation election which the ILA is leading.

Reports of the promise of funds were carried by the New York Herald Tribune and the Daily News.

The Herald Tribune said Lewis guaranteed a million dollar strike fund to the ILA "if it carries out its threat to strike for bargaining certification by the National Labor Relations Board."

The promise of funds was made at a recent Washington meeting of Lewis and a high ILA official, the story said.

Lewis gave the ILA 50,000 for its campaign against the ILA-AFL for the dock representation election Dec. 22 and 23.

The Herald Tribune said, "the one million dollar backing will enable the orphaned ILA to call an immediate strike should the labor board invalidate last month's bargaining election."

"Invalidation of the election would probably lead to an immediate strike as well as quick affiliation of the old ILA with Mr. Lewis' union," the story added.

Unemployment Rolls Swell Across U. S.

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rolls — swelled by the discharge of temporary Christmas help — will grow to over two million this month, government officials forecast today.

Just yesterday, the Commerce Department's Census Bureau reported a 422,000 rise in joblessness in December, attributing most of this to a seasonal winter drop in farm employment. There was little change in non-farm employment.

The bureau said 850,000 Americans were out of work last month, the only one of 1953 in which unemployment was higher than the corresponding month of the previous year.

Total civilian employment last month, the bureau said, stood at 60,764,000 — below December totals both in 1951 and 1952.

The officials who made their prediction this month noted that there might be further bad weather layoffs in construction and other outdoor trades.

Congress Convenes on Friendly Note But a Stormy Session Is Ahead

City Officials Take Oath; No Protest to Bond Issue, Council in a Giving Mood

Charles Tarpley, Fred Johnson, Jessie Brown, Mayor Wilson, H. C. Murphy and City Recorder Mrs. Charles Reynerson took oath of office last night as Hope City Council wasted little time in getting down to business which covered much territory.

The council was in a giving mood and when the session ended the city had parted with quite a bit of money in requests and purchases.

They voted a $58 claim to Mrs. A. P. Powell for damage to her auto which was involved in a wreck with a city-owned vehicle; decided to accept bids for a new police car; and will take bids for a new leader for the street department; passed a motion to pay half of the cost of a $7,500 bond for Court Clerk Miss Annie Jean Walker providing the county pays half.

Without opposition voted to allow a $4,200 budget request to the Parks and Recreation committee as requested by Mike Kelly and Charles Gough; gave final approval of Dean Parsons as a new member of the police force and raised Allen Shipp's salary to $270 per month as permanent night chief; voted $25 to KXAR for helping its man of the year promotion; made arrangements to get a new fire siren which will replace the old whistle; agreed to send Donald Dill to Little Rock for a day conference with civil defense officials; ordered the treasurer to pay the city's membership in the Red River Valley Association; and hired a new man regular fireman.

In other action, the group refused to sell a water well at municipal airport; discussed liability insurance covering all city-owned vehicles; pledged every assistance to the new Chamber of Commerce President Kenneth Ambrose who was present; would not reopen a request of Wade Warren to lower minimum on an electrical line and agreed to extend an electrical line to serve the home of Bob Garrett on the Shover Springs road.

Mayor Wilson made of various departments heads which was unchanged.

Last night had been set as time for local taxpayers to discuss the proposed $75,000 additional bond issue for the Water and Light Plant overhaul but no opposition was voiced.

In regard to hiring Dorsey Huckabee as a regular fireman the Mayor told the group this would be necessary following an inspection from the Fire Rating Bureau. He warned that the city was barely hanging in Class 6 and he had been advised that two additional regulars would be needed as well as more volunteers. However, no action was taken on the matter. A change in the city's rating would hike insurance rates on property.

The mayor complimented the Recreation group for not asking for more money, terming it something "unusual."

Big Issues That Face 83rd Congress

WASHINGTON (UP) — The big issues before the second session of the 83rd Congress:

axes — President Eisenhower expected to recommend to Congress that it keep tax rates at about where they are now; House Ways and Means Committee to go to work next week on a general tax revision bill that would mean some new tax cuts; administration, expected to resist pressure from some members of Congress for another individual income tax cut.

Farm — Mr. Eisenhower planning to submit a special message to Congress Monday outlining amended new agriculture program; present price support law on six basic commodities expires at end of this year; farm state congressmen expect existing law to be extended without much change, regardless of administration recommendations.

Democrats and GOPs Headed for Showdown

By RAYMOND LAHR WASHINGTON (UP) — The showdown second session of the 83rd Congress convened on a friendly note today although it is expected to be one of the stormiest meetings in recent history.

Republicans and Democrats were headed into angry debate that will make or break President Eisenhower's 1954 program and possibly decide the November congressional elections.

But it was all sweetness and light as the gavel banged down in the crowded Senate and House chambers at the stroke of noon. Est. among friends and foes alike there were hearty greetings, slaps on the back and vigorous handshakes.

Two new senators and four representatives were welcomed to the fraternity and lined up to take their formal oaths of office. They included Sen. Thomas A. Blanton, the Ohio Democrat who succeeded the late Sen. Robert A. Taft.

And in accordance with long honored tradition, committee members officially informed Mrs. Eisenhower of the opening of Congress and received formal notification that the president would address the State of the Union message.

But behind the conviviality lay a stormy session ahead, piling up the way in Congress to the new few months must decide many controversial issues affecting the nation's prosperity, its basic military strategy, and its farm, labor and tax policies.

And Congress must make these decisions with the Republican troubled by internal divisions and little more than nominal control, and with the Democrats fighting aggressively to make a comeback in November.

The opening-day schedule began with an intercession and Holy Communion service at the National Presbyterian Church for Mr. Eisenhower and members of Congress, the Supreme Court and the administration.

The swearing-in of new senators and new representatives was the only important business to be cleared away before the President delivers his State of the Union message to a joint session tomorrow. This message, a general outline of the administration's legislative program, will be the signal for the real fighting of the session to begin.

Mr. Eisenhower will lay down specific recommendations in a series of subsequent special messages and he is reported to be urged to light it necessary to cut them across. The odds are he will have to do plenty of this, particularly with members of his own party.

5,000 Apply for Only 200 Jobs

By D. HAROLD OLIVER WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican National Committee has a list of about 5,000 persons who want jobs in the Eisenhower administration. And there are only about 200 political jobs open.

These figures were supplied by a reporter today, the start of a new session of Congress, a sign always for a jump in political activity.

President Eisenhower has 12 high-level positions to fill. Four of them, it was learned, are about to be filled, four more are going through the screening process and four are open for recommendations from state patronage organizations.

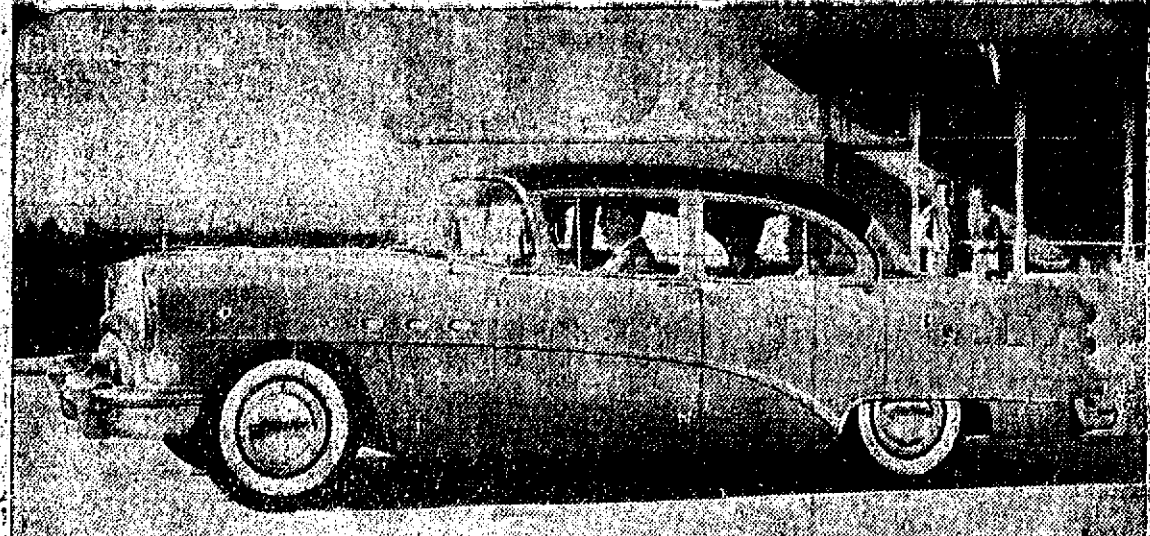

Horace H. Hayden of Indiana, Conn., is credited with starting the world's first dental school there.

Screen Probers Study Ilicit Love

By CHARLOTTE G. MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Supreme Court turned from crime movies today to the problem of illicit love.

When the justices leave the bench at 4:30 EST this afternoon they will review their second movie of the week.

It is "La Ronde," a French language film which New York censors banned as immoral. The picture deals with a series of interlocking love affairs in Vienna at the turn of the century.

Yesterday members of the court convened in one of their conference rooms to watch the film "La Ronde," the story of a psychopath who lures small girls to their deaths by buying them balloons and sweets. The local crime syndicate finally corners the killer in order to ward off police raids demanded by the frightened public.

Fewer Clothes French Stylist Tells Filmland

By BOB HOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Here's some happy new year's news for American husbands: A French style expert thinks the women here could get by with fewer clothes.

My source is Jeanette Spanier, directress of the exclusive Pierre Balmains salon in Paris. A handsome English woman, she married a French doctor and became the head of business matters for Balmains.

This is her first trip to America and she is full of enthusiasm to such things as escalators, Santa Anita race track, the courtesy of sales people and bourbon old fashioned.

"I am impressed by the way American women dress," she commented, speaking with a Gallic flourish of the hands. "Americans far exceed the French in casual clothes; you wear stunning things here. You are also superb in diaphanous dresses. But for all gowns — aub that is where the French are superb."

"Another thing the French do best — the simple black dress. A French woman can wear it to lunch with only simple gold jewelry. In the afternoon, she can wear it with more ornate jewelry. Then she could wear it to dinner at the most exclusive restaurants by adding a few accessories.

"I do not see that in America the women seem to worry that they will be seen in the same dress twice. French women do not feel that way. They might wear the same dress three nights in a row and not be concerned."

This may seem like heresy in her business, but Mme. Spanier added that French women don't vacillate with the style.

"All this talk about hems going up and down," she exclaimed. "It's just for publicity — to give the fashion reporters something to write about. French women never change the length of their hems."

Mrs. Spanier recently helped supervise the outfits for Lana Turner in "Betrayed," which was filmed in Europe. She said that Balmains had designed some rather subdued dresses for Lana, since she plays a schoolteacher in the film. I asked what she thought of Hollywood designs.

"My, they do have a lot of sequins, don't they," she replied pointedly. But she added that many of the stars' costumes are well done, even if they have to be overdone for dramatic purposes.

What about the best dressers among the stars?

"Lana wears clothes very well," she commented. "I don't want to make it sound like loyalty to my hostess, but Claudette is one of the smartest women I have ever seen. I felt that way even before I met her."

Betty (Bacall) Bogart wears clothes beautifully, and so does Mary Livingstone. Mrs. William Goetz is perhaps the best dresser in Hollywood; everything she wears is perfectly chosen. Off-stage, Marlene Dietrich is very chic. Of course, she has to wear more theatrical clothes on stage. I'm anxious to see that gown she is wearing in Las Vegas."

"Oh, yes, I can't forget Katharine Hepburn. We dressed her for 'The Millionaire' in London. She wore a ball gown that was simply gorgeous on her. Unfortunately, she always wears slacks offstage."

Taxi Driver Jailed for Rape of Girl

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sheriff Tom Gulley said Clarence Andrews, 27-year-old Little Rock taxi driver, was charged last night with raping a 14-year-old North Little Rock girl.

Andrews is being held in Pulaski County jail without bond. Gulley quoted the victim as saying she hired a cab to take her home after she arrived by train from Texas Sunday, but instead the driver drove her to an abandoned gravel pit and raped her.

She said she was let out near her home and warned to say nothing of the incident.

A hospital examination confirmed that the girl had been raped, Gulley said.

The sheriff said he was told by Andrews that on Sunday he drove the taxi to Forrest City, Jonesboro, Kennett and Monette, Mo. He said he turned around before reaching St. Louis and returned here.

Gulley said Andrews had served time in the Kansas State Reformatory at Topeka for assault on a woman.

Rose to Give Wife Sizeable Hunk of Cash

NEW YORK (UP) — Billy Rose has agreed to give Eleanor Holm Jarrett $30,000 permanent alimony yearly and a tax-free gift of more than $175,000 in return for a divorce, the New York Post said today in a copyrighted dispatch.

Columnist Earl Wilson and William Greaves said the bantam baron and the former Olympic swimming queen had reached a financial settlement in Rose's 80-month battle for marital freedom.

"They both felt they've had it," an intimate of Rose we've quoted as saying. "They're tired of all the waiting and court expense."

The settlement, described as a compromise by both sides, would give Miss Holm $600 weekly in alimony and a cash settlement of between $175,000 and $225,000 to be paid over a period of 10 years in annual payments. Thus Miss Holm would receive 500,000 from Rose in the next decade, the Dispatch said.

Rose was reported to have retained the couple's estate at Mount Kisco, N. Y., all of his paintings including a Rembrandt, and his collection of antique furniture and art objects. Miss Holm was said to have kept possession of her jewelry including a $150,000 diamond necklace. Rose was said to have placed their Beekman Place home here on the market.

Rose and Miss Holm's attorneys were expected to notify Supreme Court Justice James McNally shortly of the tentative settlement, the Dispatch said. That would terminate Miss Holm's action for a legal separation and save Rose from going into court to fight over alimony. It also would open the way to a quick divorce.

The Post Dispatch said Rose's frequent companion, Actress Joyce Mathews, broke off with him about two weeks ago. It said Rose had phoned Miss Mathews over the holidays, however, and sent a Christmas gift to her daughter, Vicki Berle, whose father is TV comic Milton Berle.

Miss Holm has been receiving $700 temporary alimony weekly since her separation from Rose. The permanent alimony settlement would represent a $100 cut in her weekly income which would be made up by the installments from the cash settlement.

Presumably the alimony would be terminated if Miss Holm remarries.

Dick Powell Is a One-Man Industry

By B. HMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dick Powell, the one-man industry, is back to his old racket of acting these days, but he's still cooking on all burners.

There was a time when people thought all Dick could do was croon and make cinematic love to Ruby Klier. Now there appears to be little he can't do in the entertainment field.

At present he is emoting with Debbie Reynolds in "Susan Slept Here," an assignment he accepted after Robert Mitchum turned it down. Dick has no qualms about performing in warmed-over Mitchum.

"Mitchum was right in turning down the part," said Powell. "He wasn't right for the role. The part calls for a man old enough to be Debbie's father. Mitchum is too young for that."

"As a matter of fact, I was offered the role when Alex Gottlieb was producing the picture independently. I was too tied up at the time. Later Howard Hughes took over the property and wanted to produce it. I decided against it. It's a cute picture, but wouldn't advance me as a producer of my first film."

He expects his first production to be "The Long Wire," a Western about the stringing of the telegraph across the frontier. As stars, he hopes to have John Wayne, Jane Russell and Robert Mitchum. Well, he can hope, can't he? Dick, to whom nothing seems impossible plans to direct the film as well as produce.

Among his other activities was the directing of "Caine Mutiny Court Martial," the highly successful stage version of the best seller. The show, which stars Henry Fonda, Lloyd Nolan and John Hodiak, will open in New York Jan. 25 and Powell hopes to be there. His present may help quell the reports of an all-out feud between himself and certain members of the company.

"Sure, Henry and I had a little beef," he admitted. "You know how moody he can be. Well, we had a difference of opinion over how certain scenes should be played. He wanted certain cuts to be made, and Herman Wouk, who wrote the book and the play wasn't available for a week or so. Herman is a very debour Jew and wouldn't work during the holidays."

"Henry got worried. He wanted certain comedy scenes to come out. He didn't give his full effort. I thought I'd try to get him to work. So, rather than cause any more friction, I bowed out."

"Charles Laughlin took over for the last five days of rehearsal. I saw the show after it opened and there were very few changes from how I left it."

"That isn't all that Dick is involved in. He also produced and stars in a half-hour drama for the

Rockefeller's Wife Wants $10 Million

NEW YORK (UP) — Barbara Sears (Bobo) Rockefeller was quoted today as saying it is "real nonsense" to assert she wants a 10 million dollar settlement from her estranged oil millionaire husband.

Edwin Dunaway, attorney for Winthrop Rockefeller, said in Little Rock, Ark., yesterday that Mrs. Rockefeller had repudiated a financial agreement signed last Oct. 1 and is now asking 10 millions.

Dunaway said the agreement of last year called for Rockefeller to provide for his wife and their son, Winthrop Paul, 5, trusts totaling 5 1/2 millions. $70,000 annually or an alternative trust of $500,000.

A spokesman for Mrs. Rockefeller early today issued a statement in which Mrs. Rockefeller said, "contrary to reports, a settlement has not been rejected."

The spokesman, a woman who identified herself only as a friend of Mrs. Rockefeller, quoted Mrs. Rockefeller as saying she is "surprised to read that negotiations have been broken off since my attorney is meeting with my husband's attorneys this morning."

The spokesman said the meeting would be in New York in the office of one of Rockefeller's attorneys.

Reports from Little Rock did not say specifically that negotiations had been broken off.

5 Children Perish in Home Fire

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me. (UP) — Five children — four brothers and a sister — perished today when a flash fire from a defective oil heater demolished their home at this beach resort.

The little girl was to have celebrated her 7th birthday today. It was the second such fire on the same street. Four children perished in a similar fire 10 years ago.

Victims of today's blaze, children of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Whitcomb, were: John 9, Howard 5, Allen 4, Irving 3, and their sister Diana 7.

The children's bodies were found in the upper floor of the 1 1/2 story bungalow where their mother, Theresa, herself was trapped by the flames.

Mrs. Whitcomb was spotted by a neighbor, Vincent O'Connor, who persuaded her to jump from a window. She suffered only minor cuts.

Police said the fire started when a space heater exploded. The blast occurred a few minutes after Whitcomb had left for work on a school construction project in Kittery. He was summoned back by telephone.

Both the father and mother became hysterical and were unable to give authorities a coherent story. They were placed under a doctor's care.

O'Connor, who was shaving, looked out a window and saw flames engulfing the Whitcomb house. He knocked one off every few weeks.

May Have Last Word on Saunders

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UP) — Actor George Sanders beat Zsa Zsa Gabor to the punch when he sued her for divorce Nov. 2, but the Hungarian actress may have the last word, at that.

Zsa Zsa filed a cross-complaint for divorce yesterday. She denied Sanders' charge of mental cruelty and in her complaint alleged that he caused her grievous mental distress and anguish.

The actress' complaint said a property agreement had been agreed upon and would be executed before the divorce hearing. The couple separated last Oct. 20.

Doctors Say Kinsey Report Is Harmful

NEW YORK (UP) — A psychiatrist and a gynecologist say in a new book that the Kinsey report on females has created "myths" about sex and that its statistics "have done more harm than good."

The charges are made by Dr. Edmund Bergler, New York psychiatrist, and Dr. William S. Krogger, Chicago gynecologist. Their book, "Kinsey's Myth of Female Sexuality" (Grune & Stratton, New York), came out yesterday.

There was no immediate comment from Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey, of Indiana University.

Bergler and Krogger said that Kinsey's study made errors in approach and method which canceled out his findings, that it disregards basic psychological mechanisms of human behavior. Last Kinsey is blamed for psychiatric.

The two say there is danger that Kinsey's findings could give homosexuals or persons with other sexual difficulties an excuse for avoiding medical treatment.

Among other things, Bergler and Krogger object to the "postulate that the 'human animal' is a machine-like figure who discharges sex without the element of tenderness." They add that sex "is an expression of the total personality, not of the sex organ alone."

Bergler and Krogger said "statistics mean nothing if the material submitted for statistical computation is not properly compiled" and added:

"In Kinsey's case, his combination of medical misinformation and psychological ignorance presented an unsuperable barrier to either scientific formulation or questions, or to correct evaluation of answers."

The two add that medical specialists should have checked Kinsey's statistics.

home next door. He rushed out and saw Mrs. Whitcomb silhouetted against the flames that roared through the upper floor.

"Jump, jump," he yelled. Mrs. Whitcomb hesitated momentarily, as if deciding whether to go back after the children, and then leaped out a window.

The bodies of four of the children were found in their beds. The other was on the floor. While ruins still were smoking, the bodies were removed to an undertaking parlor.

Dr. William D. Roussin, York County medical examiner, said the children had suffocated.

A Million Dollar Idea Is All Very Fine But Few Such Ideas Turn Out That Much in Cash

NEW YORK (UP) — How would you like to start the year off with a free million-dollar idea?

Well, a fellow gave me one the other day, and after examining it from all angles, I am now passing it on to you — and you are welcome to it.

"Why doesn't somebody invent a new middle-aged pleasure?" this man demanded. "It would be worth a million dollars to him."

When I asked him what he meant he continued:

"A great amount of effort and energy is spent thinking up gadgets to keep the young happy or soften the woes of the elderly. But nobody pays any attention to the middle-aged."

Well there are more middle-aged people than any other kind. Why should we have to shift for ourselves as much? Why doesn't somebody exert a little brain power to provide us with some new form of pleasure?

"Take me, for example. I'll admit I'm middle-aged, and I am bored. I am in that critical period when a man is too old to enjoy playing postoffice and too young to enjoy rheumatism. Why doesn't somebody dream up a new kind of pleasure that will enable the middle-aged people to forget themselves and our problems?"

"Have you never tried bird watching?" I inquired. "The sight of our little feathered friends at work and play is often soothing to the spirit."

"Look," he said, "let's be practical. When you've seen 'em sparrows, you've seen 'em all. Let the birds watch each other."

He made the same complaint about baseball, television viewing, canasta, and stamp collecting. He was weary of sports and hobbies.

He said, "What I want is an absolutely new pleasure for a middle-aged guy like myself — something that doesn't come in a bottle or wrapped in cellophane, something that doesn't come with a guarantee to help me or hurt me, but something I can get some real fun out of."

"Any other qualifications?" I asked.

"Well, yes," he said. "A new pleasure for a middle-aged man ought to be simple and inexpensive. It ought to be something the children can't steal from you as soon as they reach their teens. It ought to be something a man can enjoy without having to share it with a woman. Naturally, also, it ought to be respectable, so that it won't be denounced by the clergy, or make a man subject to arrest and imprisonment."

"What all?" I inquired.

"Yes, that's all," he said. "But is that too much to ask?"

Frankly, it didn't seem too much to me. After all why shouldn't a middle-aged man be allowed a new pleasure that wouldn't bankrupt him, bring down the law on his head, or that he would have to divide with his wife and kids?

"Don't you have any suggestions?" my friend asked hopefully.

I thought and I thought. But it isn't easy to think up a fresh middle-aged pleasure that meets these restrictions. Finally I told him lamely:

"Have you thought of taking up the study of ventriloquism? That would fit the rules you laid down. 'If I do,' he bridled. 'I'll show where to find my first dummy.' As I say, it's a million-dollar idea — if you can come up with a real answer. But it's like most other million-dollar ideas: they're two bits a dozen unless you know what to do with them."

Even if I could discover a new middle-aged pleasure, I doubt if I'd tell anybody. It might be better just to enjoy it in silence."

8th Army Set for Anything January 22

By JOHN RANDOLPH and WILLIAM G. BARNARD

SEOUL (UP) — The 8th Army is getting set for "any eventuality" in midnight Jan. 22 when more than 20,000 anti-Communist prisoners are scheduled to be freed from neutral custody. It was learned tonight.

These eventualities, reportedly include even an attack by South Korean army forces. If anti-Red Chinese and North Korean prisoners are not freed according to the Korean armistice timetable.

Even as the 8th Army prepared for the prisoner release, South Korea and the Communists — bitter foes — joined in bitter criticism of a head count of anti-Communist war prisoners by Indian troops. The U. N. Command has warmly endorsed the count.

American troops waiting south of the demilitarized zone were reported ready to handle a deorganized push southward of thousands of prisoners if they should break out or become unruly after being released from the 56 compounds in which they are held.

It also was learned that present plans call for the anti-Red prisoners to start moving southward at midnight Jan. 22. The POWs will not be asked to wait until dawn.

Measures are being taken to special isolation of pro-Communist prisoners or agents moving southward with the prisoners, a South Korean official said. They are being moved to a new camp in the north. These will be moved to Inchon board ships for Formosa.

ROK Foreign Minister Byung Yung Tai and North Korean Gen. Lee Sang Ho used almost the same language in condemning the head count.

Lovesick Boy Fails Suicide and Murder

CHICAGO (AP) — A lovesick high school senior slugged his sweetheart with a jack handle Sunday in an attempt to write a murder suicide and to their association and told police he did it because religious differences predated their marriage.

The girl, Marlene Bubar, escaped from the car in which they were together on a North Side street after a fight. Blows inflicted by the slugging, broke her right index finger, thumb of her right hand, and she has fractured her skull.

Police said young Fitzhenry, son of an oil company expediter, told him he intended to knock Miss Bubar unconscious and then run her father's car into their garage to leave the engine running so she would be asphyxiated.

Two notes found in the boy's pockets indicated he had planned their lives since Monday.

Marlene seems not to appreciate anything. She is not satisfied with her life. To her I am just a kid who will show her a good time and take her nice places. To her I am everything. I worship her and can't have her. Maybe in the future I will.

The girl's father, Meyer, a department store buyer, said he did sign an assault with intent to murder complaint against the boy.

Earl Ricks, Ex-Spa Mayor, Dies at 45

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Earl I. Ricks, Arkansas Adjutant General under former Gov. S. P. McMath and ex mayor of Hot Springs, Ark., died last night of cancer at Walter Reed Hospital. He was 45.

Ricks was deputy chief of the National Guard Bureau at his death. He had been ill for several months after a cancerous growth on one leg was removed. The malignancy later spread.

A native of West Point, Miss., Ricks was a World War II flier and as deputy commander of the Southwest Pacific Wing of the Air Transport Command flew the Japanese surrender party from I. Shima, an island off Okinawa, to Manila to receive the surrender terms.

Ricks was discharged from military service in October, 1945. In 1946 he was elected mayor of Hot Springs on the GI ticket which swept McMath into the office of Garland County prosecutor and ended the longtime political reign of velvet accessories. Her corsage was pink carnations and white pom-pom mums.

Little Miss Darla Rhodes of Fort Worth, Texas niece of the bride was junior bridesmaid and wore a sky blue dress.

Don Hays served as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple left for a wedding trip and are at home in Little Rock.

Gilbert Buchanan has returned to the University of Arkansas Fayetteville after a visit with his mother Mrs. William Buchanan.

Miss Julia Logan and Mr. S. O. Logan were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Gosnell in Hope.

Irl Hubbard of Alexandria La. spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hubbard.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Bemis had as their weekend guests, C. B. Preyitt and children of Tulsa.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dalrymple and Carl Jr. have returned from Washington D. C. where they spent the past several weeks with Miss Katherine Buchanan.

Hedy Butler Jr. has returned his studies at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville after a holiday visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Hale were the Friday guests of their daughter Mrs. Joe Purcell and family in Benton.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Holloway of Rossion were the Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hart.

Fulbright Wants Both or None

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.) said today that if the Senate takes up the question of statehood for Hawaii it also should consider admitting Alaska to the union.

Such dual consideration was voted last year by the Senate Interior Committee but had the effect of stymieing the measure. In that form it was unpalatable to the GOP leaders of the Senate.

Fulbright told a reporter he doesn't look with favor on statehood for either territory at this time but said that if one is to be made a state, both should be admitted.

The Republican leadership in the Senate has indicated one of the early matters to be brought up this year will be the Hawaiian statehood bill. The Interior Committee reportedly is set to vote out the Hawaii bill alone.

Studio Suspends Marilyn Monroe

HOLLYWOOD (AP) Marilyn Monroe's studio says she has been suspended because she failed to show up for the start of her new picture.

Coincident with this announcement was a report that the shapely blonde and Joe DiMaggio, the former New York Yankee Clipper, were en route from San Francisco to Las Vegas or Reno to be married.

A studio spokesman said Miss Monroe's home telephone here doesn't answer and he could "only assume that she's still in San Francisco."

When McMath was elected to his first term as governor of Arkansas in 1946, he named Ricks adjutant general.

Ricks was named deputy chief of the National Guard Bureau and Chief of the Air Force Division of the bureau in October, 1950. He was promoted from brigadier to major general March 7, 1951.

Reared in Arkansas, Ricks was a flier for 26 years. He flew the all-jets, single engine fighters and two and four engine bombers.

He was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1940 when he joined the 154th Observation Squadron of the Arkansas National Guard. He went on active duty with the Army as a pilot in September, 1940, and a year later transferred to the 17th Bomb Group.

He served as commanding officer of the Air Transport Command at Miami, Fla., and as commanding officer at Payne Field in Cairo, Egypt.

The widow, one son, Earl Ricks, Jr., and three daughters, Miss Nancy June Ricks, Shannon Ricks and Gail Ricks, all of Hot Springs, survive.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

IF DALE felt safer with Don on their occasional outings, she had more fun with Phil. An evening with Don left her nerves calmed and her body relaxed, but Phil always made her feel that a strong wind had blown over her, brushing off all the cobwebby changes of introspection. After an evening with Phil, she felt keyed-up and restless, and vaguely resentful of her involuntary responsiveness to his laughter.

Now that Jeffrey Windsor's books were in order, her work at the shop was comparatively routine. On slack days, Jeffrey attended auction sales. "Never know what rare old edition will come out of somebody's attic," he said. On busy days, there was often time for only a midday sandwich and coffee at the office desk. Once, as compensation for no lunch at all, Jeffrey suggested dinner together.

"I'm sorry," Dale said. "I have a date this evening, Jeffrey."

It happened to be the truth, but the lift of Jeffrey's shoulders gave him an air of indifference. He really did not care whether or not she dined with him.

One evening at closing time, Dale thought she saw a familiar face among the passers-by who stopped, scanned the window display, moved on. Lora Thornton? It so, she did not come in, and a last-minute loitering customer took Dale's mind off her predecessor.

Outside, nailing a taxi, Dale saw her again. After a moment's noticeable pause, Lora came over to her.

Dale featured the cab driver to wait. "Hello, Lora! I thought I saw you at the window, earlier. Why didn't you come in?"

Lora made a faint, sullen movement with her shoulders. "Do you like your job?" she asked Dale.

"Yes, I do."

"And Jeffrey?"

"Of course," casually.

Lora glanced over her shoulder at the shop. "Is he still in there?"

"Yes."

Lora grasped Dale's arm. "Could you and I have dinner somewhere?" she asked, and rushed on. "Say yes, Dale, or I'll lose what pride I have left and go in there to him. I'll say things I'll wish I hadn't said. Please, Dale."

Dale heard the note of desperation. At the curb, the taxi's motor was still idling. "Come home with me," Dale said. "The friend I live with is dining out this evening, so we'll be alone."

"Do you mind?"

"Oh, get in!" Agatha's peremptoriness was in her voice. "And don't start apologizing! I haven't had a chance to play Good Samaritan for ages." She went on chattering as they rode along, watching for Lora Thornton's face to lose its look of strain, her body its tautness.

"Thanks, Dale," Lora said finally. "You saved me from making an awful fool of myself."

"You are in love with Jeffrey, aren't you?"

"Yes, I am."

"Is it as tragic as all that?"

Lora looked straight at her. "Tragic and hopeless and just plain hell." She looked away, lapsing into silence until the car stopped at the narrow brownstone house.

"Run along and wash up," Dale said, as they went in. "I'll tell Sarah I've brought a guest."

Lora looked trapped. "You said we'd be alone!"

"Sarah cooks for us," Dale explained. "She'll fade into the wallpaper after dinner, and then we'll sit outside and talk."

They took their coffee and a plateful of Helen Collier's fruitcake out on the upstairs iron-railed balcony. Low sun cast long black shadows across roofs and walls. The languor of a midsummer evening stilled the air.

In a tilted-back deck chair, Lora Thornton stretched her body long and clasped her hands behind her head, but she didn't look relaxed. "I am taking the midnight train tonight," she said. "Home to Rockley."

"Where's that?"

"Near Chicago."

Dale said gently, "Go ahead—talk if you like."

"Thanks." She spoke tightly. After a long silence, she sighed. "Jeffrey loves me too, you know. It's not, as you may have thought, one of those Victorian 'unrequited loves.' She looked over the rooftops at the cloudless sky. "When you caught me in front of the shop, I was on my way to him. One last time, to beg him to marry me. But it would be futile, again. Jeffrey will never marry. There is a reason—one a man less high-minded and altruistic might ignore."

The adjectives surprised Dale, but she let Lora Thornton go on. "There is a taint in his inheritance, Dale. It doesn't show in Jeffrey, but it might in his child. So he won't risk having a child, and passing it on. It's a sacrifice he won't ask a woman to make with him. Doesn't he know," she whispered, "that he couldn't possibly hurt me any more than he already has?"

Feeling helpless and inadequate, Dale murmured, "Perhaps, in time—"

Bitterly Lora rejected the pang. "You're a widow. Has time helped you?"

Dale was silent.

Lora said, "Some women have to have marriage. You're one of them. I'm another. What has time got to do with it? It doesn't alter the fact that we need someone. She unclosed her hands and leaned forward. "May I stay with you until bedtime, Dale? I don't dare be alone, or I'll weaken and go to him."

"I'll put you safely on the train," Dale said. "Does Jeffrey know you're going?"

"Yes, he knows."

"Couldn't self-pity be behind his decision not to marry?"

Lora shook her head. "I've tried to belittle his motives, too. I've told myself that he's self-centered, a martyr, a neel. He's not, Dale. And he has his work. A man can work off his repressed energies on something worth while, something satisfying."

"What's to stop a woman from doing the same thing?"

Instead of answering, Dale went inside to refill their coffee cups. On her way out, she put some records on the machine. Ethel Merman singing Ole Ma Madam followed her shatteringly out to the balcony.

Lora lifted her head ruefully. "Not exactly mood music, is it?"

"I'm not going to intensify your mood by something Russian and morbid!" Dale said firmly.

Nor mine, she thought ruefully. The minutes ticked by; an hour, two. Several times Dale went in to change the records.

Dale rose at last. "We'd better go, if you're to catch that train!" She took Lora's hand and drew her up. Her light tone vanished as she pressed Lora's hand. "A year from now it won't be so bad."

"Is that from your own experience?"

Dale straightened her shoulders and lifted her face to the stars. Very bright, very close they were tonight. Reach up, Kelly had said, one unky-black night as they lay on the dock after a midnight swim. Reach up and grab a handful for w. Dale. Oh, why bother! We've got each other. Who cares about the stars? A quiver of shock ran through Dale at the sudden realization that she could not summon a clear image of Kelly's face.

"Yes," she said steadily, her eyes following the Dipper's handle and coming to big, bright Arcturus. "From my own experience. Come along, you've got a date at Grand Central!"

Clark Declares Dulles Is Weak Minded

NEW YORK (UP) — William Clark ousted chief justice of United States courts in Germany, today accused Secretary of State John Foster Dulles of having a "drill sergeant mentality" and said the State Department was "lying in its teeth" when it denied his diplomatic passport had been for cibly seized on Dulles order.

The 62-year-old jurist arrived on the liner Queen Mary. Although his four-year judicial term in West Germany was scheduled to expire next Friday, he defied a State Department order on Nov. 25 relieving him from his job.

The wealthy Princeton N. J. judge, who has been in many controversies during this long career on various state and federal benches, said when he was relieved that he would stay on the job until the State Department proved formal charges against him. The department thereupon suspended him, took his diplomatic passport, and gave him another one specifying that he take a direct route home.

In a shipboard interview, Clark said that on State Department orders a "Franco police commission" forcibly took his passport while he was visiting the Canary Islands, thus depriving him of "freedom of movement." He said he would consult his attorney today on the possibility of bringing a mandamus action against Dulles to get another passport.

Hoods Take $20,000 From a Crap Game

CUSHING, Okla. (UP) — Four hooded bandits armed with pistols and a submachine gun took $20,000 from patrons of a "floating" dice game last night in a robbery that followed the pattern of a recent poker game holdup at Austin, Tex.

The gunmen, wearing women's stockings over their heads, pistol-whipped one of the 20 persons at the high stakes dice table and fired at the feet of another as he tried to escape. They left with a threat to "blow hell out of you if anybody moves."

One woman was among the players and spectators at the table in a four-room frame house just north of Cushing. The robbers forced the men to take down their trousers and tied their victims' ankles and wrists with picture-hanging wire they had brought with them.

Several of the victims were identified as Cushing businessmen, but others came from Arkansas, Kansas and seven or eight cities in Oklahoma. Police did not identify them.

The brash robbery was investigated today by officers from the patrol Payne county sheriff's office and Cushing police force. The investigation moved by midday to the nearby towns of Jennings and Oilton, Okla., where several of the victims live.

It was reported a dice game had been going on in this area for several months, moving from Officers noted the holdup last night was strikingly similar to a $4,000 residential poker game robbery at Austin, in which several masked bandits forced the players to remove their trousers and pistol-whipped some of them. Five persons were arrested after the crime but later were released for lack of evidence.

There was also speculation the Cushing robbery might have been an inside job by gamblers who knew all about the habits of the dice players.

The house was bought recently by E. G. Perry of Winfield, Kan., who lists his occupation as oil field worker. It stands in a well-populated residential area about three blocks off state Highway 18 one mile north of Cushing.

About $3,000 was on the dice table when the bandits broke in. A Woodvarden Okla., player said he lost a $2,500 diamond ring to the gunmen, and an Enid, Okla., man reported they took 5,000 from him.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures were steady today on trade and commission house buying. Gains extended to 70 cents a bale before most deliveries reacted somewhat from day's best levels on profit taking and hedging. Demand was credited in part to covering against export sales.

Late afternoon prices were 20 to 70 cents a bale higher than the PREVIOUS CLOSE. Mar 33.27, 33.50 and July 33.35.

NEW YORK (UP) — Coffee dinner, 23 may expect to see the retail price go well above the $1 a pound mark before long.

Wholesalers boosted prices another 3 to 4 cents a pound today. Distributors attributed the rise to a tightening world supply picture, resulting largely from a frost-damaged Brazilian crop, and a consequent price rise at the producing end of the line.

Roasters yesterday paid a record price of 68 cents a pound for the mild Colombian green coffees in the New York market, a rise of 1/2 cent a pound from the previous levels.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

CHICAGO (AP) — Grains faltered after a short-lived display of strength at the start on the Board of trade today.

Most grain contracts sank back below the previous finish, soybeans and 1934 crop wheat deliveries losing the most. But the losses weren't very large.

Lard scored new season highs in early dealings and resisted the later selling much better than cereals.

Brokers said there appeared to be a tendency to go slow in the market prior to President Eisenhower's farm message to Congress next Monday.

Unknown Arkansas Is Coming Home

SEATTLE (UP) — The U. S. Army said today a sergeant first class from Biglow Arkansas is coming home on the Navy Transport Marine Lynx when it docks here tomorrow.

changes advocated by labor, and others advocated by employers.

Social Security — Mr. Eisenhower expected to renew his recommendation of last year for broader old age insurance coverage; may congressmen also favor increasing benefits, which Mr. Eisenhower may recommend; some congressional sentiment for a minimum $45 a month pension to cover all over age 65, but most members expect this plan to get nowhere.

Trade — Present reciprocal trade agreements law expires June 12; Republicans split on question of whether higher tariffs on many items are in order to protect domestic industry; Mr. Eisenhower awaiting recommendations of study commission before making his recommendation on foreign trade.

Budget — Mr. Eisenhower planning to submit federal spending program for fiscal 1935 to Congress Jan. 21; administration reportedly has abandoned plans for balanced budget in next fiscal year.

Foreign aid — Administration expected to recommend continuance of foreign aid program for another year, but on a reduced scale and with emphasis on military assistance.

Other problems — "New neighbors moved in yesterday. Look pretty crummy to me, but too early yet to tell whether they'll be real problem."

Suggesti ons to improve office efficiency — "I still say it wouldn't break any hearts if they'd pass a little more money around in this place. Yay day here is like standing in line at the poorhouse."

The Hallmark of Circulation Value

In the same way that STERLING on silver signifies a standard of known value, so is the A.B.C. emblem a symbol of integrity for the circulation of newspapers and periodicals. It means that circulation so identified is measured according to the rules and standards of the AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS.

The A.B.C. is a cooperative and non-profit association of 3,450 publishers, advertisers and advertising agencies. Organized in 1914, these buyers and sellers of advertising brought order out of advertising chaos by setting up standards for paid circulation and establishing rules and methods for measuring, auditing and reporting circulations.

Therefore, the work of the A.B.C., of which this newspaper is proud to be a member, provides you with a direct and valuable service. You can buy advertising as you would make any other sound business investment — on the basis of well known standards, known values.

At regular intervals one of the Bureau's large staff of experienced circulation auditors makes a thorough audit of our circulation records. The results of this exacting audit show: How much circulation we have; where our circulation goes; how it was obtained; and many other facts that you need in order to know just what you get for your advertising dollars.

This audited information is published by the Bureau in easy-to-read A.B.C. reports which are available to our advertisers on request. Ask for a copy of our latest A.B.C. report.
